Rotary International Convention

For those of us who have never been to an international convention for Rotary, we got a taste of how amazing this event actually is.

Carol Horner, Council Bluffs Noon Rotarian and friend to our club, gave us a glimpse of what this year's international convention in Atlanta looked like. Carol showed us many photographs taken of her "personal journey" at the convention. This year's event celebrated the 100th year of the Rotary Foundation. There were more than 38,000 Rotarians from over 100 different countries who participated in this year's event. Speakers were interpreted in seven different languages simultaneously. Carol participated in a 3K walk around Centennial Park as a fundraising event for the Foundation. This is how she acquired the awesome shirt she wore this morning. She showed us photographs from the House of Friendship room and from the convention floor itself. Clubs and districts throughout the world showcased projects currently being worked on. Rotary Fellowships were out in full force. She indicated if you have an interest in something, chances are Rotary has created a fellowship for it. She also expressed how easy it was to meet and speak with individuals from all over the world. She had many photographs of the friends she made. Her excitement about this event was still evident.

Carol shared that next year's international convention is relatively close again, Toronto. For those who are interested should definitely think about attending. Thanks to Bob for getting Carol to come speak to our club.
